

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A device for detecting radiation signals and a device for measuring the concentration of a substance are described, a first detector and a second detector being provided on a first chip, and a first filter and a second filter being provided on a second chip, the first chip and the 5 second chip being connected to one another in hermetically sealed fashion.